

COCOONING

Frédérique Vanvlasselaer

SERAX

When creating her Cocooning holders, Belgian ceramic artist Frédérique Vanvlasselaer explored the possibilities of textures on the porcelain surface, which would change with light. She took inspiration for her applied layers from textures that arise through decay, such as layers of paint that peel off, cracks in a wall or a rotting piece of wood. The Cocooning holders are further characterised by their organic signature and refined finish. Their organic nature is reflected in their soft wavy lines and earthy patterns.

“The soft candlelight creates a warm feeling through the translucent porcelain, with which I want to contribute to a sense of homely cosiness.”

FRÉDÉRIQUE VANVLASSELAER

Frédérique Vanvlasselaer began making ceramics 15 years ago. Self-taught, she was able to experiment freely, often with surprising results. Only later did she enrol at the Academy of Visual Arts in Ghent to master the basic principles and techniques. This knowledge helped her to further explore the limits of what is possible and refine her own artistic language. Since 2020, she has been working full-time in her own porcelain studio - Studio Frédérique in Maarkedal - where she works on limited editions and custom creations.
